Information about cookies:

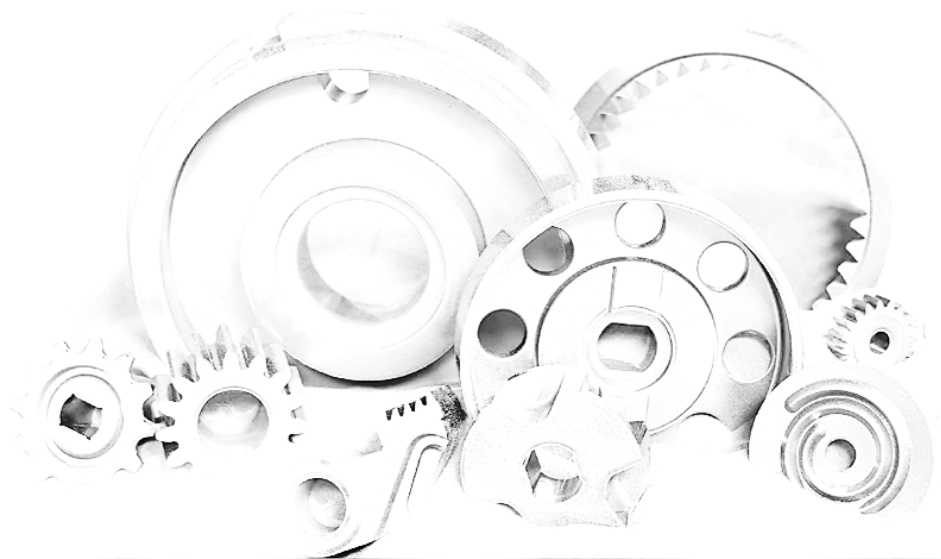

A "cookie" file is a small text file with information about your navigation on the site, which the website stores on your computer, phone or other device. "Cookies" files are necessary to facilitate browsing and to simplify it, and they do not harm the computer in any way.

Although we use the general designation "cookies" in these Rules, since they are the main way of storing information used by the site, the "local storage" space in the browser is also used for the same purpose as "cookies". All information in this section also refers to "local storage". "Cookies" files are an essential part of the site's functioning. The main purpose of our cookies is to improve your browsing experience. They are used, for example, to remember your preferences (language, country, etc.) when browsing and on future visits. The information collected by cookies also allows us to improve the site by estimating the number and patterns of use, its suitability for individual user interests, faster searches, etc. Occasionally, if you have given us your prior informed consent, we may use cookies, tags, and similar information-gathering devices to enable us to display to you, either on our own site or on a third-party site or otherwise, advertising based on an analysis of your browsing habits.

We do not store sensitive personal information such as address, password, credit or debit card data in the "cookies" files we use. The information stored in the "cookies" files from our site is used only by us, with the exception of the files identified below as "external cookies", which are used and managed by external entities to provide the services requested by us aimed at improving our services and the user's experience when viewing the site. The main services for which we use the mentioned "external cookies" are obtaining access to statistics and ensuring the execution of payment operations. If you want to avoid the use of "cookies" files on the site taking into account the above restrictions, you must first disable their use in your browser and then delete the "cookies" files stored in the browser connected to this site. You can use this option at any time to prevent the use of cookies. You can limit, block or delete cookies from this site at any time by changing your browser configuration. Although each browser has different settings, cookies are usually set in the "Preferences" or "Tools" menu.
